

THE ASSOCIATE IN ARTS PROGRAM PRESENTS

THE SCIENCE OF DISASTER: DISASTER RESEARCH AND COVID-19

A Different Perspective on the Pandemic

MONDAY, NOV. 9, 2020 | 4:30PM – 5:30 PM | udel.zoom.us/j/93374371012

As part of the AAP's Fall 2020 speaker series, four researchers from the University of Delaware's world-renowned Disaster Research Center (DRC) will join us to discuss how disaster scientists measure the impact of the COVID crisis and how they are investigating ways to manage it.

They will also explain the work of the DRC and talk about the academic opportunities available in disaster research, from courses on Disaster and Society to the Emergency and Environmental Management concentration major in sociology. Join us on Nov. 9 to learn more about this fascinating field and get the experts' perspective!

UNIVERSITY OF DELAWARE
ARTS & SCIENCES